

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

FOREWORD

I find it utterly impossible to have this report ready until some months after the first of January of each year. To get accurate figures and digest the immense amount of matter that has to be examined requires much time. I have recently asked for the experiences of those who prepare similar reports of international reputation in Europe, and they tell me that oftentimes they are more than a year behind for the same reason. We are a little earlier this year than last because of concentrated and continued efforts to get the report out as early as possible.

WILLIAM McADOO,
Chief City Magistrate.

ANNUAL REPORT

1915

This report is primarily addressed to the people of the City of New York. The statistics contained in it are interesting and illuminative. The facts presented are those considered relative and interesting to human beings. It is not intended to make a dry-as-dust record, full of technicalities and useless discussions of involved points in the construction of the law. If any citizen after having read it would like further information regarding these Courts, an inquiry at this office will be welcomed. We court publicity and invite inspection and are receptive to all practical suggestions for the betterment of these Courts and the improvement of the service in general. We have made much progress on a given course; but when the ship stops she is at the mercy of the tide and the winds.

The most important event in the past year was the passage into law of a Bill radically amending the original Act of 1910 reorganizing these Courts. This law comes as the result of a very severe contest carried on in the Legislature for the last two or three years. It is a compromise between the Bill presented by the friends of these Courts who wanted a total merger of the Special Sessions with the Magistrates' Courts, and those who opposed that consolidation. The people of this City are indebted very largely to the disinterested citizens of the Inferior Criminal Courts Committee of the Charity Organization Society, without whose aid this measure could not have been passed. While many people are entitled to a great deal of credit in this connection, I cannot refrain from expressing the special obligation we labor under to Mr. Bronson Winthrop, Mr. Otto Bannard, and Mr. Lawrence Veiller of that Committee, and the members of the Senate and the Assembly who introduced and ably and persistently supported this law. The compromise measure itself was largely the result of the efforts of gentlemen now judges in the General and Special Sessions Courts. Of course it could not have become a law at all if it had not been after careful examination approved by Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchel. It is undoubtedly a great step in advance and so far as this office and its influence extends it will be given a fair, impartial, painstaking and thorough trial. We earnestly desire that it may accomplish all the reforms which were in the minds of those who fought so long and so earnestly and so unselfishly for the passage of a law based on these lines.

I am gratified and pleased to state that the consolidation of the Board of Magistrates of the First and Second Divisions was accomplished readily without friction of any kind, and that the consolidated Board begins its work under the most favorable indications. At the first meeting of the consolidated Board common rules were at once adopted, committees appointed, and the machinery of the separate organizations adjusted and reconciled into working order.

The Magistrates showed themselves at once earnestly and zealously in favor of giving a full and complete support to the provisions of the new enactment, so that the community might have every element of betterment and efficiency which those enacting it had in view. There remains yet, of course, a great deal of work to be done to beget that uniformity in practice and procedure and that cooperative and fraternal spirit which begets certainty and consistency in the treatment of convicted defendants; to improve physical conditions of the Court Houses throughout the city; re-adjust district lines; consolidation of Courts; provision for new ones dealing with special cases; uniform discipline of employees and centralized and economic business administration; a re-arrangement of the schedule of assignments of Magistrates; concerted progress in all reformatory advances. These are the things which must always be had in view and in which we must keep step together. We are the servants of the public and their larger interests must predominate.

I want in this connection to express my gratitude and thanks to the Magistrates of the former Second Division for the loyal support which they have given those changes brought about by the recent enactment and to the occupant of this office.

Here are the principal changes made by the new law:

1. The two former Divisions of Magistrates' Courts in Greater New York were abolished and consolidated into one Board. This Board numbers 39 Magistrates. The two offices of Chief City Magistrate were abolished and one created, having jurisdiction over the Greater City. He is also the presiding officer of the new Board of Magistrates.

2. In specific offenses in the nature of misdemeanors, each Magistrate, with the consent of the defendant, is authorized to constitute himself a Court of Special Sessions and try the case and dispose of it in the Court where he presides. This lessens the volume of cases going to the Special Sessions and saves the time of the defendant, police and citizen witnesses, and is a marked improvement on former conditions. Cases which the Magistrate is authorized to try as a Special Sessions Court are as follows:

a. Violation of any provision of any Code, Rule, or Order enacted or issued by any Department, Bureau, Board, or Commission of the State or the City of New York.

b. Any misdemeanor enumerated in Article 16 of the Penal Law entitled "Animals."

c. Any of the misdemeanors enumerated in Section 925 of the Penal Law entitled "Frauds on Hotel Keepers."

d. Any violation of the provisions of Section 1566 of the Penal Law entitled "Street Railroad Transfer Tickets not to be Given Away or Sold."

e. Any violation of any provision of the Labor Law.

f. Any violation of Article 11 of the Highway Law.

g. Any violation of any provision of the Tenement House Law.

h. Any violation of any Ordinance of the City of New York which is punishable as a misdemeanor.

i. Any misdemeanor which is by statute made punishable by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment for a period not exceeding 60 days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

3. Created Municipal Term Courts to have exclusive jurisdiction over certain cases in which the Departments of the City Government, principally such as Fire, Health, and Tenement House, are complainants. This is one of the most important reforms introduced in connection with these Courts. Arrangements are made for two of these Courts—one in Manhattan and one in Brooklyn. The Manhattan Court starts first and will be presided over by one Magistrate who, with experience begotten of dealing with the special treatment of these cases, will be consistent and will add to the efficiency of the City Government in its various Departments, especially in the enforcement of laws relating to health, comfort, security, and property.

4. The creation of one Chief Probation Officer for all of the Courts instead of two, as hitherto, with two Deputy Chief Probation Officers. The abolition of the offices of two Chief Clerks and the creation of one Chief Clerk and one Deputy Chief Clerk. This begets centralized and individual responsibility, without which no business, public or private, can be run well.

5. The power to create special Courts to which specific offenses shall be sent.

This gives us the opportunity of creating a Traffic Court dealing with Speed and other Ordinances concerning vehicular traffic in the streets and the safety of the public. Efforts are under way to have such a Court, as suggested by His Honor, the Mayor, in operation very soon.

This law has been in force only since the 1st day of July, 1915. The work of consolidation of the two former Boards, begetting harmonious cooperation and adapting the machinery of the new law to existing conditions, has been actively in progress since that date. We are glad to state that the new law has worked well and without friction.

Notwithstanding the fact that we are creating two additional Courts (Municipal Terms), a District Court on Washington Heights, and a Traffic Court, the budget for the total expenses of all the Courts of Greater New York for the year 1916 under the law consolidating these Boards was $4,500 less than for 1915. This has come about by a redistribution of the employees and the consolidation of certain Courts and other administrative improvements, and will include before the year is over the establishment in Brooklyn of a Special Court for Women.

Last year we told you of radical changes made in the system of probation by which it is centralized, more closely supervised, and made infinitely more effective.

We reviewed the work of the Women's Night Court and explained just how it is operated.

We told you about the finger-print system and that it was going to help put down pickpockets, mashers, rowdies, and other vile characters.

We can only report to you that we have not only held the ground already gained, but these reforms have vindicated themselves.

The following table tells its own story and shows in condensed form the work of these Courts during the year. The increase in the number of persons arraigned is quite considerable. It is reassuring to see notable decreases in serious forms of crime and vice, such as Robbery, Burglary, Carrying Dangerous Weapons, both degrees of Larceny, Gambling, Keeping Disorderly House and Intoxication.

Increased Police activities account for the increase in other offenses, and may not the same be the cause in the decreased number of serious offenses, coupled as now with earnest and hearty cooperation between the Magistrates and the Police?

THE LARGER OUTLOOK.

The most important work in my judgment that we have on hand now is to beget a reasonable degree of uniformity throughout the Magistrates' Courts in all parts of the City in consistently, continuously and justly treating convicted defendants as to their punishment. Temperamentally and humanly, there are many angles from which one can look at a certain offense. To me it might seem a serious one, while to you it may be trivial. I may conclude that it is very injurious to the safety and the comfort of the community, while you may look upon it as of no particular consequence. There are some people, I presume, who would think that a gang of young boys returning from an outing who started in to terrorize, or at least make uncomfortable, peaceable passengers on a ferry-boat or car as only giving an exhibition of boyish virility and high spirits, whereas to another it would appear that these young fellows were simply inherently rowdies, undisciplined at home and needing correction abroad, and from which the public are entitled to protection by the Police and Magistrates. A very young boy who picks a pocket might be considered by some people as simply having indulged in a boyish prank and as not being necessarily vicious; whereas from the other point of view he is bad at heart, having deliberately acquired skill enough to filch from the pocket without being detected and has started out to get a living by stealing and other criminal practices, and therefore should be at once punished severely in order to check him at the beginning, and treated quite differently from a boy who has violated the City Ordinances by playing games in the streets or who has even fought with a companion. Some people may say gambling and the social evil have existed for thousands of years and why check them;—men want to gamble, why not allow them to do so, and a woman is only "unfortunate" if she starts out deliberately to make a living by soliciting for prostitution on the public streets; disorderly houses are necessary evils and ought to be regulated by law, excise exactions are unreasonable.

In mixed assemblages you can get a considerable debate upon any of these propositions. Magistrates as individuals may have their own personal opinions on these and other questions just like the old schoolboy form of debate as to whether it is better to live in the City or in the Country.

On the other hand, there is the law, and behind it is the public opinion generated by the majority of the citizens. If you allow the Police entire discretion as to whether or not they will enforce these laws you are subjecting them to a severe form of temptation. You are making them the judges of whether or not certain people shall be permitted to violate the law. In other words, you are giving them a license to allow a man to run a gambling house, a woman to keep a disorderly resort for prostitutes, and possibly allow pocket-picking to become a fine art—a sort of trade or profession,—or to abolish all excise regulations.

The City having provided no proper method of treating chronic drunkards, men or women, Magistrates are left no option but the Workhouse, or fine, or suspension of sentence, or probation. The Workhouse will not cure a drunkard, fining him is absolutely useless, suspended sentence may be encouraging him to get drunk again as soon as possible, and to put all drunkards convicted in these Courts on probation would break down the whole machinery of that branch of the work.

One man may look charitably upon vagrants. I know an acquaintance of mine who never fails to give to any beggar who solicits from him on the street. He says he does so because he might otherwise miss the one needy case of a poor and honest man who has no place to sleep on a stormy night, for instance, and therefore he gives to all who solicit from him. Left to himself if he were a Magistrate he would probably let all of these fellows go, and they would impose upon him with their stories. In hard times like the winter of 1915, Magistrates as well as other citizens exercised a large charity, and properly so, in dealing with real cases of destitute people found on the streets; but now in good times if the Police would not suppress them the number of professional beggars would be as large as it was last year. These strong-handed beggars, professional yeggmen, sometimes dangerous criminals, are entitled to no consideration.

I have at intervals experimented on one or two of these fellows myself as to finding employment for them and getting the truth, and they invariably turned out to be rogues and rascals who would not work under any consideration. One day last winter I had thirty of them arraigned before me on one occasion, when rumors of a foreign war were imminent. They all looked like sturdy well-built fellows and they positively assured me that they could not find anything to do. Being of the proper age, I told them to hold up their hands and any of them who wanted to enlist in the Army and I would go with them myself to the recruiting sergeant or to the Navy Yard. Not one hand went up. I did not mean to say that men of their character should go into the Army or Navy,—quite the contrary. I just wanted to test these fellows to see what they would do. I would like to have been a drill sergeant and had those fellows as recruits.

Now, the Magistrate is given a very wide discretion in the law. After you have been convicted of an offense of which he has summary jurisdiction, he can send you to the Workhouse for from one day to six months without condition; or, under certain conditions of the new Parole Law, for two years on an indeterminate sentence, or he can suspend sentence and let you go free, or he can fine you or put you on probation. Now, it is not intended or thought that some iron-clad rule could be adopted by the Board of Magistrates that all defendants convicted of a certain offense should get six months, or all other defendants convicted of a certain offense should be fined $5.00, or that the Magistrate should be hampered in dealing with really exceptional cases that are apt to come before him at any time and where a suspended sentence may be the just and proper treatment, and where probation would suggest itself at once to any kind-hearted and thoughtful man.

But, on the other hand, it does not inure to the successful administration of the law, the peace, safety and best interests of this big City that a defendant before five different Magistrates for the same offense and where the finger-prints show his record should receive radically different treatment by each in turn; nor that there should be a wide chasm between a few Magistrates and their colleagues in the treatment of special offenses.

One thing is certain—it discourages the Police and it also hampers the Police Commissioner. When he “jacks up” an officer commanding a precinct for not putting down some offense, and where the citizens are clamoring for the enforcement of the law, the Captain then comes back and says that Magistrate So-and-so discharges them all or suspends sentence or fines them two dollars; and he put all the fault on the whole body of Magistrates.

/ THE WOMEN'S COURT.

Bids were opened for the new building for the Women's Court on West 30th Street and the lowest bid exceeded the appropriation by over $300,000. The financial authorities of the City while friendly to the project and convinced of its desirability had to consider the present money conditions of the City, and for this reason the final decision as to whether or not the plans already adopted will be carried out or altered is in abeyance. It is to be hoped that a decision will soon be reached and the building well under way before the close of this year.

The new Parole Law, Chapter 579 of the Laws of 1915, will, in the nature of things, be most effective in this Court for the following reasons:

1. The finger-print system has been established here since the beginning of the Court in 1907, hence its records are more complete and cover a much longer period than those of any other Court.

2. Because the number of women convicted two or more times for soliciting or committing prostitution in tenement houses is considerably over half of the whole number that go to the Court. It therefore follows that if these women persist in professional prostitution and are caught by the Police they will be given the indeterminate sentence of two years, and for that period the Court will not be called upon to deal with them again. If the woman breaks her parole, she is in charge of the Parole Commission and can be returned to prison at any time during the indeterminate period. This law does not go into effect until the 1st day of January, 1916, and, of course, it is impossible in this report to speak with certainty as to how it will affect this Court. We can only judge from the number shown by the finger-print record to have been convicted three or more times. If a considerable proportion of these women are taken off the streets and out of the Tenement houses for the two years, will their places be filled by new-comers? Will the ranks be recruited as fast as they are depleted?

In the last Annual Report we discussed at considerable length regarding many features of this Court. It continues to be the object of scrutiny, observation, and sometimes criticism by various individuals and societies who are represented there every night in the year. In no other Court possibly in the whole world is a defendant so well protected as here. The leading nationalities and religions are represented to look after her interests if she belongs to their race or religion. Various charitable, philanthropic, and reformatory influences are represented, all interested in the defendant and to see to it that she is kindly and even charitably treated. Volunteer lawyers of both sexes frequently appear. In spite of all this, gross misrepresentations of the object of the Court and the manner in which justice is dispensed there are from time to time made by people whom we have every reason to believe are not at all disinterested and simply want to exploit themselves at the expense of these unfortunate women. This does not apply to the great body of kind-hearted, generous, and justice-loving women who attend this Court looking after the interests of the defendants. If any citizen wants to know the facts concerning this Court and he or she will write to me asking practical and sensible questions, I will be glad to answer them.

Quite a number of good women justly esteemed in the community are unfavorably impressed by the manner in which the defendants are brought into Court by the policeman in plain clothes. It shocks their sensibilities that the policeman has to dissimulate in order to get sufficient evidence to arrest the woman for soliciting or practicing prostitution in tenement houses. In the latter class of cases this dissimulation which is practiced by the police in detecting all kinds of crimes has, of course, to be used or the gross outrage of introducing prostitution among our honest and decent-living tenement house people could not be frustrated. The easy-living and jewel-bedecked strumpet would be a constant temptation and object of envy to the mechanic's daughter who lived across the hall from her. The poor working girl who has to get up at six and seven in the morning and hurry in all kinds of weather to her place of employment might easily grow envious of the lazy parasite in the same house who lolls away most of the day in smoking cigarettes and tipping before going out to prowl in the night or while waiting for her victims. Now, it goes without saying that a policeman in full uniform could not walk in and detect a violation of the Tenement House Law. The thing is absurd. It is difficult especially with certain classes of houses which are carefully guarded.

As to the street woman. I make this digression because I have been asked these questions by some of our best citizens. In most of the cases the policeman does not encourage the woman; he merely spies upon her. All the cases are practically of two kinds. In one case the policeman goes on the stand and says that "at 1:45 o'clock this morning, at the northwest corner of Blank Street, I saw the defendant. She was walking very slowly, looking into windows, speaking to men as they passed. I approached her, going in the opposite direction, when she solicited me as follows: . . ." The other case: "At 2 A. M. this morning on Seventh Avenue between Blank and Blank Streets, I saw the defendant. I had her under observation during 40 minutes, during which time she did not cover but two blocks. She was walking very slowly and stopped three men while I had her under observation. The men were going in the opposite direction when she turned and spoke to them. The neighborhood is much frequented by soliciting prostitutes at that hour of the morning."

In each of these cases the defendant generally goes on the stand and tells a story which is repeated over and over again by defendants and which is unreasonable on the face of it. The Magistrate has also to note her appearance, her manners, her language, and cross-examines her. In most cases she admits she has no regular employment or settled home, has not worked for a long time. Her excuse given for being on the street at the time of the arrest is unreasonable and often absurd. In more than half the cases the finger prints show she has been previously convicted for the same offense.

I was two years Police Commissioner and I have been nearly six years in this office, and I can say without reservation that I have never known of a single case of an honest, decent and virtuous woman being arrested by the police mistakenly for street-walking.

You ask why there is such police activity in this Court in connection with such cases. Is it to settle the social evil question? Has it anything to do with that question either socially or economically? The answer is NO. The police with the cooperation of the Magistrates are simply abating a great public nuisance, if nothing else, removing a physical and moral menace of the most alarming character and far-reaching evil effects, keeping the streets of New York City at least reasonably decent and free from this peril, preventing it from being thrust at men on much-traveled avenues and streets at all hours of the night, and day, too, if allowed; preventing pollution of the great masses of the working people who live in tenement houses. All this the Night Court for Women does decently, with dignity, propriety, humanity, charity, and firmness. I consider it one of the most useful institutions in New York. The Magistrates who preside there have a very difficult and delicate task and the community is obligated to them for the high-minded, clean-handed, and righteous way in which they bear their responsibilities and exercise their discretion.

Many women who are entitled to an answer write or come here and ask me why the men who solicit women are not arrested. We get those men as "mashers," and the records of this office show that the Magistrates as a body, even when they are only first offenders, give them sentences far more severe and out of proportion to that dealt to women under similar circumstances. In a clear case of a man insulting a woman, he is shown no mercy in these Courts. The records will prove that. If women could be found to do the same work as policeman do with regard to the opposite sex, I have no doubt the Police Commissioner would be glad to employ them. Who would think, however, of asking a young girl to go out and subject herself to insult day and night as a public official in order to detect these fellows. The law last year was amended so as to cover more definitely men. Under certain facts in tenement house cases and when acting as touts for particular women or agents of bed houses, these men are known to the police as "light houses."

DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT

This Court has done wonderfully well, but we expect it in the future to do much better. The Magistrates and the present officers are all that could be desired. The work requires infinite patience, kind dispositions, and firmness. Magistrates Harris, Cornell and Dooley, who preside in these Courts, make their own reports, which will be found interesting and instructive.

The plans for the future of this Court embrace a separate building entirely removed from the other Magistrates' Courts, and built something on the same plan as the Children's Court, only in a smaller degree. Plans have been wrought out by friends of the Court connected with the Committee on Criminal Courts of the Charity Organization Society which I think will enable me to say that within a short time it will be located in a building of its own near to the Children's Court. This also will be of immense advantage. Sometimes the same family is represented in both Courts, and it will also concentrate the energies of the Charity and Correction Departments at one given centre in dealing with the problems that both of these Courts present. In connection with that, the new organization of the Probation system, under a Chief Probation Officer to be selected after competition by the Municipal Civil Service Commission, and two Assistant-Chief Probation Officers, will admit of strengthening and increasing the efficiency of this work, especially in the Domestic Relations Court.

I wish I could appeal to the kind-hearted, disinterested and charitably disposed women who take an interest in social betterment and civic welfare on behalf of this Court. I told you a few lines back how many organizations and individuals look after the convicted prostitute in the Night Court for Women. I appeal now to the women of New York, organized or individual, to give some attention to the heart-breaking cases that so frequently turn up in the Domestic Relations Court.

Only the other night there came to this office about seven o'clock a poor woman with two very attractive children about nine and ten years of age respectively. She had been wandering all over the City on a bitter winter day looking for the pittance of $6.00 a week which her husband was to pay her. She and her two children had slept the night before among the flotsam and jetsam of the Municipal Lodging House, and she wept bitterly at the thought of having to return there. She had to support herself and these two children on six dollars a week and what little she could earn herself. They were literally and absolutely homeless and confronted with being on the street on a bitterly tempestuous night and before they could collect their little pittance in the morning. The generous and kind-hearted woman in charge of St. Barnabas Home, adjoining this office, was only too glad of having the opportunity of temporarily taking care of them.

Now, the point that I am trying to make is this: If this woman had been a convicted prostitute instead of a hard-working Finnish woman whose hands were scarred with toil and whose two little boys barely spoke English and had honesty and good-nature written all over their faces, there were several agencies I could have called on at once to take care of her. I know of no single organization or individual in the whole of New York to whom I could appeal for this sort of case. For some reason or other the same people are not attracted to the Domestic Relations Court as to the other Court. Now why should not a woman who is still struggling in the ranks of decency and virtue have as many friends as the woman who has fallen out of the ranks and joined the vicious in the easier way to get a living. I could duplicate these cases over and over again—possibly in the course of a year a hundred times. I am not criticising those who are helping erring girls to regain the path of virtue and decency, leading her back from idleness and dissipation to honest industry, far from it, but I am asking why philanthropy, charity, and humanity should forget the outraged and deserted wife and helpless little children. I am not suggesting just bare charity for them, most of these women cannot support themselves and children on the little allowance made from their husband's wages—and what they are looking for is employment, means of self-support. Sometimes opportunity for the children. In one case the woman had four children and was asked to live on eight dollars a week. She was a woman of education and good-breeding, a member of an old family in one of our States. She sent two other children back to her father, who was a very old man and of little or no means, and he was taking care of them. The other two children came under the ban of the Board of Education because they were not registered in the Public Schools. It turned out that she was very fortunate in finding they could go to a school maintained by an association of actors, where they got an education up to the public school standard, and, in addition, a warm meal in the middle of the day, and when the Christmas Season came around she said to me it would have broken her heart if it had not been that these children were remembered by the generous people connected with the theatrical profession. There was an inclination at once to criticise her for letting her children go to such a school because it so happens that sometimes these children are made part of a scenario for the moving pictures, which gives them a little outing and exercise and is, in my opinion, good for them. If she had not found this school she would not have been able to send them to the public schools at all, because the children would have been practically without food most of the day.

Let no one understand that I am in anywise criticising the Magistrates or the Officers of the Domestic Relations Court in these cases—quite the contrary. They perform very difficult duties requiring infinite patience and good judgment with marked ability and benefit to the community. The Magistrate has before him all the facts as to the earning capacity of the husband. Sometimes in many cases the latter is lazy, inefficient, and either is not able to obtain or will not undertake continuous employment, so that his income is small.

The division of the family, of course, is an economic waste and divides the earnings of the husband, having regard to his own separate support away from the family. To this end the officers attached to these Courts who understand their duties labor hard to bring about reconciliations.

COMMITTEES.

This Board is composed of thirty-nine Magistrates, including the Chief City Magistrate. It is therefore larger than some branches of the Legislatures in big States. As a large majority of the Magistrates are presiding in Court every day up to 4 o'clock, and in Manhattan two Night Courts running every night in the year, the Board, therefore, could not meet much before five o'clock in the afternoon, and even foregoing the usual dinner-hour, the time for the business before it is greatly restricted. On the organization of the consolidated Board it was therefore necessary that important standing committees should be appointed. The Law provided that the Board itself should appoint one Committee, on Assignments. In addition to this the following were provided for: "Employees," "Rules, etc.," "Legislation," "Budget and Building," "Promotion," "Uniformity of Sentence," "Welfare."

The larger committees consist of ten members each.

It speedily developed that the work of these Committees is of the most important character. With more or less frequent meetings, subjects of importance that come before them can be thoroughly discussed and conclusions arrived at to be presented to the Board itself for final action. Under the Law the Committee of Ten on "Assignments" is given large powers in itself. I am glad to state that the members take deep interest in the committee work, are prompt in their attendance, and that their aid in the solution of problems constantly arising has been of the utmost value to the Magistrates, the Courts, and the public. It sometimes happens that conferences are had between representative members of the Executive Branch of the Government and the Committees, on questions of administrative policy which come before these Courts in concrete cases. The title of each committee will at once convey the idea as to its sphere of action, with the possible exception of that on "Welfare." It not infrequently happens that Magistrates are sued for their official actions on purely technical grounds and generally on baseless charges. The members of the Board naturally feel, and properly that the Magistrate so sued, harrassed, or unjustly treated is entitled to the support of his colleagues. It is pleasant that since the re-organization of the Board and up to this time the Committee has never had a meeting. The names of the members of these Committees will be found in another part of this report.

BUILDINGS.

I am engaged in making a very careful and painstaking examination of all the Court buildings, especially in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond. Most of the Courts in all the Greater City, especially in those Boroughs last mentioned, are improperly housed. Later on I will present to the City Authorities a statement in detail pointing out defects in the present buildings and, in my opinion, what should be done to remedy the present bad conditions. As a general rule, I am in favor of the City building and owning the Magistrates' Court Houses, as leased buildings are usually unsatisfactory. I am receiving in this connection the aid of civic bodies and organizations having the welfare of these Courts and the public interests at heart. They tell me that when the proper time comes they will join in the movement for better Court Houses. A Magistrates' Court improperly housed, badly located in an unsanitary, dilapidated and unsightly building is not in any wise as efficient as it should be. A building that looks like a Court House and is clean and orderly has an educational effect on the public who have to go there. It bespeaks respect for the law and those who administer it. Some of the buildings in the Borough of Brooklyn in addition to being unsightly are hard to keep clean, forbidding and vulgar in appearance, and have exceedingly bad neighborhood connections.

Much has been accomplished since 1910 in connection with these Courts. No ground has been lost. It is for the people of New York to say whether or not these conditions are to continue as against those interests which fattened and thrive on former conditions and which would gladly return to the same if given an opportunity. If the Magistrates do their duty with courage and consistency they must make many determined and vicious enemies who will persistently urge the Legislature to undo the work already accomplished and check the enforcement of the law which makes vice and crime unprofitable. No one can understand so well as the Magistrate the full meaning of the saying, "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you."

I HEREBY CERTIFY that the foregoing report contains, to the best of my knowledge and belief, a correct statement of the amount and kind of business transacted in the City Magistrates' Courts of the City of New York during the year ending December 31, 1915.

FRANK OLIVER,
Chief Clerk.

Sworn to before me this 16th day of June, 1916.

ALFRED A. HART,

* From January 1, 1913, to June 30, 1913, the Fourth District Court, Manhattan, was closed for repairs and renovation, and reopened on the 1st day of July, 1913. This accounts for the comparatively small number of arraignments in that Court during the year 1913.

† 991 cases of Violation of Compulsory Education Law not included in this total.

‡ The Twelfth District Court, Manhattan, was created November 1, 1915. The number of arraignments credited to said Court on the foregoing table is for the period from November 1, 1915, to December 31, 1915, only.

TABLES SHOWING COMPARATIVE WORK OF THE INDIVIDUAL MAGISTRATES IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION CASES

(NOTE.—The work of the individual Magistrates regularly sitting in the Boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx is shown for the entire year. That of the individual Magistrates regularly sitting in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, is shown for the period from August 5, 1915, to December 31, 1915. All cases tried by the latter when temporarily assigned to Courts in Manhattan and The Bronx are shown for the entire year.)

WORK OF DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURTS
DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT, BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN,
FOR THE YEAR 1915.

The total number of arraignments in the Domestic Relations Court, Borough of Manhattan during the year 1915, exclusive of Compulsory Education Law cases was 3,233, divided as follows:

On Courts Summonses—
Male .....	1,741
Female .....	49
On Warrants—
Male .....	1,440
Female .....	3

Of the number arraigned on Court Summonses for abandonment and non-support there were directions made by the Court for support in 487 cases; there were discharged 902, and there were 109 cases pending at the close of the year.

Of the number arraigned on Court Summonses for violation of Section 683 of the Greater New York Charter (non-support of children and poor relatives) there were directions made by the Court for support in 179 cases; there were 96 discharged, and at the close of the year there were 17 such cases pending.

Of the number arraigned on Warrants for abandonment and non-support, orders were made directing payment in 900 cases; there were 309 discharged, and at the close of the year there were 61 such cases pending.

Of the number arraigned on Warrants for non-support of children and poor relatives there were orders directing payment in 166 cases; there were 4 discharged, and at the close of the year there were three cases pending.

There were 276 persons committed to the Workhouse in default of giving bond to comply with directions made by the Magistrates in this Court; 39 persons furnished bond to comply with the directions of the Court and 743 persons were placed on probation, conditioned that they comply with the order of the Court. Of those placed on probation, 740 were males and 3 were females; 708 of these persons were placed on probation immediately after trial and 35 after they had been committed to the Workhouse.

Of those committed to the Workhouse on failure to furnish bond after conviction under Section 685 of the Greater New York Charter (abandonment and non-support) 36 were unconditionally released before the expiration of the six months sentence, in every case at the request of the wife of the defendant.

There were 35 persons released on probation after having been committed to the Workhouse.

The orders made by the Courts were modified in 8 cases.

Probation was revoked in 72 cases and the defendants committed to the Workhouse in default of giving bond.

From the figures above given it will be seen that of the 743 persons placed on probation after conviction the Magistrates found it necessary in only 72 cases to revoke the original order placing the defendants on probation, so that 671 defendants availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by probation to support their families or contribute to the support of poor relatives.

The nativity of all persons convicted in this Court during the year 1915 for abandonment and non-support of wives was as follows:

Austria .....	93
Canada .....	2
England .....	13
France .....	4
Germany .....	37

DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT, BOROUGH OF THE BRONX, FOR THE YEAR 1915.

The total number of arraignments in the Domestic Relations Court, Borough of Bronx, during the year 1915, exclusive of Compulsory Education Law cases was 793, divided as follows:

On Court Summonses—
Male .....	509
Female .....	6
On Warrants—
Male .....	278
Female .....	0

Of the number arraigned on Court Summonses for abandonment and non-support there were directions made by the Court for support in 154 cases; there were discharged 214, and there were 14 cases pending at the close of the year.

Of the number arraigned on Court Summonses for violation of Section 683 of the Greater New York Charter (non-support of children and poor relatives) there were directions made by the Court for support in 67 cases; there were 58 discharged and at the close of the year there were 8 such cases pending.

Of the number arraigned on Warrants for abandonment and non-support, orders were made directing payment in 190 cases; there were 42 discharged and at the close of the year there were 5 such cases pending.

Of the number arraigned on Warrants for non-support of children and poor relatives there were orders directing payment in 39 cases; there was 1 discharged, and at the close of the year there was 1 case pending.

There were 36 persons committed to the Workhouse in default of giving bond to comply with directions made by the Magistrates in this Court; 35 persons furnished bond to comply with the directions of the Court, and 158 were placed on probation, conditioned that they comply with the order of the Court. Of those placed on probation, all were males; 153 of these persons were placed on probation immediately after trial, and 5 after they had been committed to the Workhouse.

Of those committed to the Workhouse on failure to furnish bond after conviction under Section 685 of the Greater New York Charter (abandonment and non-support) 8 were unconditionally released before the expiration of the six months' sentence, in every case at the request of the wife of the defendant. Under Section 633 thereof, 2 such persons were so unconditionally released.

There were 5 persons released on probation after having been committed to the Workhouse.

The orders made by the Court were modified in 5 cases.

Probation was revoked in 24 cases, and the defendants committed to the Workhouse in default of giving bond.

From the figures above given it will be seen that of the 158 persons placed on probation after conviction the Magistrates found it necessary in only 24 cases to revoke the original order placing the defendants on probation, so that 134 defendants availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by probation to support their families or contribute to the support of poor relatives.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT, BOROUGH OF BROOKLYN,
FOR THE YEAR 1915.

The total number of arraignments in the Domestic Relations Court, Borough of Brooklyn, during the year 1915, exclusive of Compulsory Education Law cases, was 2,118, divided as follows:

On Court Summonses—
Male .....	787
Female .....	0
On Warrants—
Male .....	1,326
Female .....	1

(In addition to the above 4 males were arrested without process.)

Of the number arraigned for abandonment and non-support there were directions made by the Court for support in 1,333 cases; there were discharged 796, and there were 268 cases pending at the close of the year.

Of the number arraigned for non-support of children and poor relatives there were orders directing payment in 7 cases; there were 9 discharged, and at the close of the year there were 15 cases pending.

There were 82 persons committed to the Workhouse in default of giving bond to comply with the directions made by the Magistrates in this Court; 29 persons furnished bond to comply with the directions of the Court and 236 persons were placed on probation, conditioned that they comply with the order of the Court. Of those placed on probation, all were males; 198 of these persons were placed on probation immediately after trial, and 38 after they had been committed to the Workhouse.

Of those committed to the Workhouse on failure to furnish bond after conviction under Section 685 of the Greater New York Charter (abandonment and non-support) 13 were unconditionally released before the expiration of the six months' sentence, in every case at the request of the wife of the defendant.

There were 38 persons released on probation after having been committed to the Workhouse.

Orders made by the Court were modified in 4 cases.

Probation was revoked in 58 cases and the defendants committed to the Workhouse in default of giving bond.

From the figures above given it will be seen that of the 236 persons placed on probation after conviction the Magistrates found it necessary in only 58 cases to revoke the original order placing the defendants on probation, so that 178 defendants availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by probation to support their families or contribute to the support of poor relatives.

The nativity of all persons convicted in this Court during the year 1915 for abandonment and non-support of wives was as follows:

Austria .....	15
England .....	8

The work of the Finger-Print Bureau in the Borough of Manhattan during the year 1915 shows that of the 19,813 persons ordered finger-printed in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, 9,119, or 46 per cent., had previously been recorded and in these cases records were furnished to the Magistrates showing from one to twenty-one previous convictions.

In the 10,157 intoxication cases, 4,466, or 44 per cent., were old offenders, an increase over 1914, when 33 per cent. of the cases were repeaters.

Of the 2,734 vagrancy cases, 1,295, or 47 per cent., were old cases, an increase over 1914, when 31 per cent. were repeaters.

In disorderly conduct cases, where convictions were had for soliciting alms, annoying women, etc., 2,782 persons were ordered finger-printed and 1,440, or 52 per cent., were old cases.

467 persons were convicted of disorderly conduct (jostling, pickpockets) of whom 123, or 26 per cent., had previous records.

In cases of prostitution (soliciting and loitering) and vagrancy (Tenement House Act), of the 3,053 persons finger printed, 1,665, or 55 per cent., were old offenders. During 1914, 51 per cent. were old cases.

Of all the male cases, 37 per cent. were finger-printed more than once, while of all the female cases, 62 per cent. had previous records.

The work of the Finger-Print Bureau in the Borough of Brooklyn during the year 1915 shows that of 9,778 persons ordered finger-printed in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, 2,997, or 31 per cent., had previously been recorded and in these cases records were furnished to the Magistrates showing from one to sixteen previous convictions.

In the 8,110 intoxication cases, 2,450, or 30 per cent., were old offenders, an increase over 1914, when 14 per cent. of the cases were repeaters.

Of the 1,289 vagrancy cases, 433, or 34 per cent., were old cases, an increase over 1914, when 16 per cent. were repeaters.

In disorderly person cases, 19 were ordered finger-printed. None were old cases.

In cases of prostitution (soliciting and loitering) and vagrancy (Tenement House Act), of the 360 persons finger-printed, 114, or 32 per cent., were old offenders. During 1914, 34 per cent. were old cases.

FINGER PRINT BUREAU.

Report of ALFRED A. HART, Supervisor.

In one of the City Magistrates' Courts in the Borough of Manhattan, the other day, a man was arraigned, convicted and then ordered finger-printed. Smiles appeared upon the faces of many present when the last order was given, for the prisoner had both arms amputated above the elbows, but strange to say, when the man was re-arraigned before the Magistrate for sentence, the affidavit had a record blank attached to it showing that the man had on two previous occasions been convicted of the same offense in the Borough of Brooklyn.

To the uninitiated this seemed remarkable, not only the production of the record, but the short space of time taken to obtain it.

In order to enlighten those persons who may have no knowledge of the finger-print method of identification, or the system as used in the City Magistrates' Courts of the City of New York, I will describe briefly the finger-print system and how this information can so readily be presented:

Finger-prints were first made of practical value by Sir Edward Henry, the present head of the Metropolitan Police Force of London, England, who formulated a system of classification which is at present in use in most of the countries of the world and which is the foundation of most of the other systems in use.

The ridges which cover the inner surface of the hands and the soles of the feet, form themselves into patterns on the first phalange of the fingers. These patterns, through investigation by Sir Francis Galton were proven to persist during the entire existence of the ridges, which is from the sixth month of the embryonic period until decomposition sets in after death.

These patterns are divided into four general types:—Loop, arch, whorl and composite. The system is built on an elimination method. The first step or primary classification, places the print in one of ten hundred and twenty-four groups. The ten hundred and twenty-four divisions were obtained by considering the loops and arches together in one group, and the whorls and composites in another.

The ten fingers are divided into five pairs. Four possible combinations could be made in each pair, viz., a loop and a loop; a loop and a whorl; a whorl and a loop, and a whorl and a whorl.

Four groups or combinations in one pair would form with four groups in a second pair, sixteen variations. With the third pair this number of groups would be increased to sixty-four.

With the fourth pair the number would reach two hundred and fifty-six, and when the five pairs were combined, ten hundred and twenty-four groups or variations would result. The same result is obtained by giving a numerical weight to certain fingers.

A print when classified, immediately falls into one of these ten hundred and twenty-four groups. Each one of these groups or classes, is subdivided into from twenty-four to over four hundred thousand possible combinations, and the sub-classification immediately determines into which of these groups the print belongs, eliminating all the other groups.

If this sub-group is too large a further division is made until the actual group to be searched is very small. When this final division is reached the print is considered for detail in the formation of the ridges. This detail consists of ridge terminations, bifurcations, island formations or any peculiarity in the formation of the ridges or pattern. This detail must check up with the print identified and with proper care there should never be an error made in identifying a print.

The Metropolitan Police records of London claim that during the period of thirteen (13) years from 1901 to 1914 they made over one hundred and three thousand (103,000) identifications without an error and in our own Magistrates' Courts during the last four years, thirty-one thousand (31,000) identifications have been made without an error.

The identification of the armless man remains to be explained and in doing so I will go a little deeper into the system. When a finger is missing from a hand, its type is determined by the same finger on the opposite hand, but when both of these fingers are missing the fingers are considered as having been of the whorl type, consequently when all the fingers are missing they are all considered whorls and the man is placed in the one group of the ten hundred and twenty-four (1,024) that contain all whorls.

This group is divided into eighty-one (81) sub-groups, and the missing whorls all fall in one of these sub-groups. There are various ways of making the identification then. The print sheet in this sub-group showing no impressions will be marked with the man's height, color of his eyes and any scar or mark that might identify him. When the fingers only are amputated, an impression of the palm of the hand is taken and the peculiarities of the ridges are then compared, while in one of our institutions where the men immediately upon admittance are compelled to take a bath, it has been possible where a man's arms are amputated, to take the impressions of the soles of the feet.

The City Magistrates' Courts have a system that is without a counterpart anywhere in this country, and it is safe to make the assertion anywhere in the world. It is so arranged that though the courts are very far apart, the same information can be obtained in five minutes after a conviction in any court.

This is done by duplicating the prints through Photography and by filing a copy of each print in each court, together with a record of the man. If "A" is convicted in a Magistrates' Court in the Bronx, his finger-prints are photographed and distributed to each of the other courts. If he is re-arrested in the Borough of Brooklyn his record confronts him upon conviction, and the additional arrest is added to his record in every court, and no matter in what court he may appear thereafter he will always, upon being finger-printed, be confronted with a complete record of his previous convictions, where finger-prints had been made.

It is the first time that such a system has been used to separate the offenders into different classes before sentence, and its value to the Magistrate is of great importance as it enables him to discriminate between the hardened offender and the person who has for the first time violated the law. In separating the offenders into classes it aids probationary work by picking out the "regular" who cannot be aided by, any means from the man who may, and it gives a working basis for a uniformity of sentence where there are no special circumstances in a case.

It is of statistical value because it is accurate and in this information, study can be made in certain sociological phases.

There is a certain amount of feeling against having one's finger impressions taken, but if people would realize that there is also a certain amount of protection in it, and that it is only harmful to those who have something to conceal, this feeling would not be so strong.

It is usually classed with the Rogues Gallery and the idea is prevalent that any one can look in a finger-print file and say: "Why that's Bill Jones," while the truth of the matter is that there are not one hundred in the City of New York who could find a print in one of the files and not one of them could say that a print belonged to a certain man unless he takes impressions of that man's fingers and compares them with the one on file.

To emphasize this point I will mention a case that happened not long ago. Three young fellows who had been arrested for disorderly conduct and finger-printed were so disturbed about the matter that they called at the office and tried to have their prints removed from the files. After I had explained to them the impossibility of anyone being able to find their prints and that the only danger was in their being re-arrested, I made the offer to them that they could take their prints away with them provided they could find them in the files within a half hour. I had no power to make this offer nor to remove the prints, but I knew that it was an impossibility for them to find the print and if they did stumble across one with the same name, it would probably have been some one else's print.

The only person who should object to a finger-print record in a court file is the man who might be re-arrested and the very presence of this print in the file acts many times as a deterrent.

The banks take finger-prints as a protection to themselves. Corporations who employ many illiterate help have their pay rolls signed with a finger impression for their own protection, while many of the Foreign Governments, have the bearers' finger-print impressions upon the back of their passports. The Civil Service Commission uses it as a check upon a man impersonating another at an examination, and I think that there should be a bureau in this city where a law abiding citizen could file his finger-prints for his own protection.

There are many cases each year in our hospitals where the person is unable to make his identity known. There are many cases of Aphasia in this city each year and there are many persons buried in Potter's Field through inability to identify their bodies. The person convicted in the Magistrates' Courts is better safeguarded for in case of death their bodies could be identified by the Bureau of Unidentified Dead of the New York Police Department, through the City Magistrates' Court copies, and during the last fifteen years or more bodies have been identified in this way.

In case of a big disaster such as the San Francisco earthquake or any like catastrophe, many persons who would otherwise be simply classed as missing could be located through their finger-prints.

An incident occurred not so long ago that showed its value as a protection. A man made application for a license as a chauffeur. He was informed that he had been arrested and could not get a license. The police card showed his name, age, address and other particulars corresponding to his application, yet the man denied the arrest and agreed to be finger-printed to prove that he was not the person arrested. His finger-prints were taken at the Chief City Magistrate's Office, and he was not the man who was arrested, somebody who knew him having given his name, age, and address.

Figures are usually dry reading, but in order to show the value of this method of identification I will give a few of the results in our courts:

Up to the first day of May, 1916—81,755 persons had been finger-printed in the City Magistrates' Courts, and in 30,952 cases, or almost 38 per cent. a record of a previous conviction was shown and these records contained from one to twenty-three previous convictions.

Some odd conditions appear from these records. One man was arrested three years in succession upon the same day and at no other time. He evidently celebrates some anniversary too well.

In another case two men, on three different occasions, were arrested upon the same days, probably a joint celebration, while the two offenders who have been arrested twenty-four times each, are a man and a woman who started their careers just a day apart, and who have since been running a race to see who would obtain the most marks to their account.

In 1915 the percentage of old offenders or repeaters was 46. The females who came back amounted to 62 per cent., while the males totaled 37 per cent.

If the majority of our people decide that certain restrictions shall be placed on the Statute Books as a law or ordinance, and a person is convicted of the offense after a fair trial, a record should be kept of this person, and the record should be a true one.

Many persons do not tell the truth as to their identity even under oath upon the witness stand, so that in order to obtain accurate records the finger-print system has been resorted to, and its workings in the Magistrates' Courts have justified this use.

In conclusion I will say that many times in the newspapers and in work on Police systems, the statements have been made that the Police Departments of the various cities should exchange finger-prints and records and some have even carried it as far as to make the exchange international.

If the City Magistrates' Courts system was analyzed, it would be seen that just such an idea is worked out every day, the District Courts being the different Cities or Countries and the Central Office and Photograph Gallery at 300 Mulberry Street, being the Clearing House and engine room for the machinery of just such a system.

During the year 1915, the finger-print records of the former First and Second Divisions were consolidated under one Bureau and the methods used in the Courts of the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx were extended to the Courts of the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond.

It was impossible to place a finger-print expert and filing facilities in each of the Courts in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond, so this territory was divided into zones, and one Court, fully equipped, was established as headquarters in each zone.

This change of method permitted old offenders to escape without their records appearing against them upon their first conviction thereafter, but on a subsequent arrest the complete record (in all cases where finger-prints were taken) would be produced, no matter in which Borough the arrests may have taken place.

The Finger-Print Bureau has been of great assistance to the Probation Bureaus on Preliminary investigations and in detecting re-arrested probationers. It has also been of great aid to the Bureau of Unidentified Dead of the Police Department, at least fifteen bodies having been identified by means of the records furnished by this Bureau.

The reports this year have been submitted separately, inasmuch as the consolidation of the Bureaus did not take place until December, 1915, and a better opportunity for comparison with previous years could be made.

Of all the male cases, 28 per cent. were finger-printed more than once, while of all the female cases 42 per cent. had previous records.

Two prints are made in all cases, the extra copy being supplied to the Department of Correction, to accompany the prisoner, thereby preventing any substitution or changing of names by prisoners.

Dated, July 25, 1916.

PROBATION BUREAU, BOROUGHES OF MANHATTAN AND THE BRONX.

Report of GEORGE D. MCKAY, Acting Chief Probation Officer.

In presenting to you my annual report on the work of the Probation Bureau of the Magistrates' Courts of the Boroughs of Manhattan and Bronx, for 1915, I desire to lay particular stress upon the necessity of more male probation officers. During the year there were 597 less visits made than in 1914, although there were more cases on probation, and you can readily see that the work of the Bureau will take a step backward unless conditions are remedied, which can only be done this year by the Magistrates shortening the probation period in other than non-support cases.

During 1915 many cases of disorderly conduct were placed on probation for a whole year, and if that practice is adhered to during the present year, I am absolutely certain that your probation officers will not obtain the same good results as they have in the past; for, with the number of non-support cases increasing (118 more during 1915 than in 1914) and with 182 more of the same cases remaining on probation at the end of the year than there were at the end of 1914, it will be impossible for the probation officers to devote proper time and attention to their cases.

If the above suggestion is carried out and the probation term shortened in other than non-support cases that will be some relief, but provision for more male probation officers should be made for next year. During the year the probation officers made 14,642 visits and also 2,796 investigations which was 176 more than in 1914.

At the beginning of the year there were 958 male and 169 female cases pending, a total of 1,127 cases. During the year there were placed on probation 1,591 males and 507 females—2,098 in all. During the year probation ended in cases of 1,416 males and 466 females, leaving 1,133 males and 210 females, a total of 1,343 cases on probation at the end of the year.

You can see by the above figures that the male officers are over-burdened with work, an average of 170 cases having been handled by each of them during the year; and at the end of the year there remained an average of 75 cases per man, which is many more than can be properly handled, to say nothing of the investigations which they are called upon to make in addition to looking after their probation cases.

Experience has demonstrated to probation officers that in making the probation term, in disorderly conduct cases one year, the probation officer is punished as well as the probationer, on account of the added work imposed upon him. Experience has also shown us that if good results are to be obtained in disorderly conduct cases, it will be accomplished within a few months, except in rare cases, otherwise the probationer in many cases would be arraigned for not complying with the conditions of his probation.

In the non-support cases, probation officers are virtually a collection agency, for their time in those cases is almost wholly spent in seeing that the amount of support, as ordered by the Court, is paid by the probationer. Yet the redeeming feature about handling those cases is the possibility of effecting reconciliations, of which it is very gratifying to state there were 195 during the year as compared with 190 in 1914.

Records at the probation bureau show that those reconciled cases rarely return to Court, which tends to show that the probation officers have done their work intelligently and well.

Female probation officers at the Women's Night Court have received material assistance from the different agencies:—Homes, Associations, Societies and individuals that are interested in the reformation of defendants brought into that Court, and take this means of expressing their gratitude and heartfelt thanks to them, for with their very generous assistance the burdens of the probation officers have been lightened very much.

For some time past I realized that we had a weak spot in our system and that was in the group reportings, which, although a decided improvement over the system in vogue some years ago, was not altogether all that might be desired, but I am pleased to say that we have eradicated that trouble and there can be no further objection to the probationers' reportings as conducted at present.

Dated, January 21, 1916.

PROBATION BUREAU, BOROUGH OF BROOKLYN,
QUEENS AND RICHMOND.

Report of ARCHIBALD J. MCKINNY, Deputy Chief Probation Officer.

I respectfully beg to submit the annual report for the Probation Bureau for the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond over which I had jurisdiction, for the year 1915.

Up to June 30th, these court districts were part of the then Second Division, but from July 1st until December 31st this division has been under the jurisdiction of the Chief City Magistrate as one complete body. For the first part of the year the probation officers performed their duties under the system in force in the old Second Division, but since July 1st the system of the old First Division has been installed in a limited sense only. Particularly has this been the case with the women probation officers, who report at headquarters each morning in the Temple Bar Building. There are exceptions to this rule, however, namely, where there are permanent assignments in the Women's Court and Domestic Relations Court. Also in the Boroughs of Queens and Richmond, where both male and female probation officers are permanently assigned. This latter exception was made necessary because of the long distances from the Brooklyn headquarters, and the reporting would necessitate great loss of time. As no provisions have been made for the accommodation of the male probation officers at the bureau in Brooklyn, these officers have practically continued work along the old lines at the court districts. Consequently there has been no chance of giving the probation system as carried on in Manhattan a fair opportunity to be developed, as it is desired.

Permanent assignments have continued at the Domestic Relations Court. Since the removal of the female probation officers from that court in February last, with the exception of the one permanent female assignment, there have been only two male probation officers on duty there. With this small force it has been impossible to give the large number of cases the attention necessary for proper supervision. Still the two male and one female probation officers managed to keep the cases well in hand, as is demonstrated by the large amount of money collected for the support of families and the many reconciliations brought about. With the appointment of four additional male probation officers, to take effect on January 1st, 1916, it is the belief that many of the short-comings in the Domestic Relations Court will be overcome and an effort will be made to place this court at the top in efficiency and results of Domestic Relations Courts in the United States. To bring this about, many suggestions have already been put into effect in a tentative way that are bound to bring good results. It has always been my contention that the best work in that court could only be produced by special assignments of probation officers to duty there; that officers so assigned should be qualified for that class of work. There should be no distribution of the cases from that court to probation officers doing other classes of work and the probation officers working there should not be given cases from the outside. It appeals to me that if the authorities saw fit to make special assignments of Magistrates to these courts because of the belief that these Magistrates were better fitted for this class of work—either in temperament or experience—it would be a great benefit to the success of the work to have probation officers equally adapted to the work, also.

In the Women's Court there is at present one woman probation officer assigned. The work there has increased very materially during the year; not so particularly in the number of cases, but more attention, it seems, has been given to the women cases. Because of the desire—and rightfully so—of the Magistrates to have the presence of the woman probation officer in court during the arraignment of the women prisoners, it has necessitated the attendance of the officer in court during the entire day, at least up to a late hour in the afternoon, leaving very little time for preliminary investigations and visits. This has proven a great hardship to the probation officers. Assistance has been given whenever needed, but still it has developed that the real need is the appointment of an additional officer to that court. In that case the officers could alternate in the court, giving the other day for investigations and visits. I respectfully recommend this to your consideration.

Preliminary investigations were on the increase during the year. There were 2,548 cases investigated. During 1914 for the eight months during which preliminary investigations were made, there were 1,447 cases investigated by the probation officers. So heavy has this part of the work become that it has given probation officers comparatively little time to make visits to probationers with proper regularity. In many instances Magistrates have allowed only one day for an investigation, which is too short a period to properly cover the ground necessary for a complete record. There were 9,112 visits made to the homes of probationers, namely, males 6,603, and females 2,509.

From localities outside of the city and state have come a large number of requests for preliminary investigations and reports. Requests have been received from Albany, North Tonawanda, Utica and Yonkers of New York State; Boston, Mass.; New Haven, Conn.; Newark, Hoboken and Atlantic City, of the State of New Jersey; Philadelphia and Pittsburg of Pennsylvania. This cooperation has been reciprocal and in turn the probation officers of these mentioned and other cities have generously responded whenever requested by our bureau. Consequently there is fast growing a complete system of cooperation in probation work, not only in the state, but throughout the country.

Much informal probation work has been carried on at this office and seems to be on the increase. These cases come largely to the Probation Bureau, while many are received personally by probation officers. Of course, according to rule, these cases should not be handled by the probation officers and the complaining wife, husband and parent should be referred to the courts, but a large part of the complaints are made by persons who have a delicacy about going to court because of the danger of publicity, or other consequences that might arise. Mothers who have daughters whom they fear are in danger of going wrong are in the majority. They feel that a visit by a probation officer in a friendly spirit, as warning to the erring girl as to future consequences, would prove beneficial, and in many cases there has been much good accomplished as a result. As already stated, this is not probation work as prescribed, but so much has been accomplished and can be done by the friendly assistance of a probation officer in these cases that I feel that it is good probation work in the line of prevention. In other instances women have appealed to the bureau for aid in making a formal complaint in court because of nervousness on their part and also because the details of the complaint are of a character hard of recital by an inexperienced woman of refined nature.

There were 2,988 persons placed on probation in 1915, and with the 2,168 cases carried over from 1914, made a total of 5,156 cases handled by probation officers. In comparison with 1914, there was reduction of 409 cases. This was vastly overcome by the large number of preliminary investigations made by probation officers. In the year 1914 there were 1,477 preliminary investigations, while in 1915 there were 2,548 cases investigated, which was largely the cause of the reduction in probation cases. Out of the 2,548 cases investigated only 988 were placed on probation. There were 2,000 persons placed on probation without first having an investigation into their character and environments. There were discharged or otherwise disposed of during the year 3,092 cases, of which 2,460 finished the probation period satisfactorily.

In the Domestic Relations Court there were 1,217 new cases assigned to the care of probation officers—five of which were other than disorderly person cases. Besides this number of cases there were continued from 1914, 972 cases, making a total of 2,189 handled by the officers during the year. Through the probation officers the sum of $103,406.66 was paid into the court by probationers. There were 250 reconciliations brought about. The Monday night sessions are responsible for many of these. On these occasions husbands and wives appear at the court—the husbands to pay according to the order of the court and the wives to receive the payment. The presiding Magistrate, the Honorable Edward J. Dooley, sits informally in his chambers. To him are referred many cases each evening for re-adjustment or settlement with beneficial results. ## COOPERATION WITH AGENCIES.

There has been established at the Domestic Relations Court an employment bureau, still in embryo state, which has aided very materially in solving many of the problems. It is expected that as this branch of the work develops greater good will result. In connection with this bureau cooperation is carried on with the Federal employment bureau in Manhattan and the State employment bureau in Brooklyn, the latter under the superintendency of Mr. Richard A. Flinn, formerly assistant secretary of the State Probation Commission. It would show a want of appreciation if the report did not contain a reference to the valuable cooperation of the various social agencies, including the Bureau of Charities, Association for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, the United Hebrew Charities and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Each organization is doing its best in assisting in the work of the Domestic Relations Court. The clergy of the various denominations have also shown an interest in the work and have given generously of their time. This work of cooperation will be greatly extended during the coming year.

A closer cooperation of the agencies of the Bureau of Charities is about to be established with the work at the Magistrates' Courts, so that all cases where financial help and assistance is needed can be systematically referred to the local branches of the bureau. This new phase of the work has been brought about by Mr. Louis Pink, Secretary of the Courts Committee. Blanks have already been furnished by the bureau to be distributed to the probation officers. It is expected that much needed relief will be obtained by this united action. The Society of St. Vincent de Paul and other agencies are to be invited to participate in this cooperation, so that there may be a complete and uninterrupted force at work assisting in probation and reform.

APPEAL BUREAU.

Report of JESSE BERNHARD, Assistant Chief Clerk.

An important branch of the office of the Chief Clerk is the Appeal Bureau, with which the general public does not come in contact, and few, perhaps, are familiar with its functions.

The Code of Criminal Procedure (Section 751) provides that a defendant who feels aggrieved at the judgment of a Magistrate may within 60 days after the judgment is rendered or sentence imposed appeal to the County Court and in New York County to the Court of General Sessions. It applies only to cases of summary jurisdiction,—in other words, it deals with offenses in which a City Magistrate has power to render final judgment and impose sentence.

Since the new law has been enacted (Chapter 531, Laws of 1915) authorizing the Magistrate in certain cases of misdemeanor to hold a Court of Special Sessions and render final judgment, an appeal may be taken from such judgment to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. For a time lawyers were in doubt as to what appellate tribunal would have the power of review until it was recently passed upon by Judge Delehanty of the Court of General Sessions, New York County, who dismissed two cases on appeal with a memorandum followed by an opinion by Judge Wadhams of the same Court to the effect that they had no power of review. Appeals from this character of cases are rather rare, except when an important question of law is involved.

The bulk of the work of this Bureau consists of preparing the "Returns" or the answering of questions raised on appeal. As appeals from these Courts are not taken as a matter of right and allowed only in cases where possible errors may have been committed at the trial from an alleged wrongful determination, or a sentence contrary to law, it would seem just and proper that the Magistrate be permitted to explain and give grounds upon which his findings were based, since the appellant, or his counsel, is permitted to submit elaborate briefs urging the allowance of the appeal.

Under the old system, prior to the re-organization of these Courts (July, 1910) and the establishment of this office, the return or answer to the appeal made by the Magistrate consisted of a copy of the complaint and sometimes a transcript of the stenographer's minutes, and as minutes were not taken in every case the return consisted most of the time of a copy of the complaint only, with perhaps a short summary of the proceedings written by the clerk of the court. As there are 28 Courts the "Returns" were made without uniformity. When such documents reached the Appellate Court the Judges of that Court had a hard task before them. This proved very unsatisfactory, with the result that an appeal taken from a Magistrate's decision invariably meant a reversal of judgment.

Under the present system returns on appeal from Magistrates' decisions are prepared at this office. The record that is submitted to the Appellate Court is complete in every detail. A brief, consisting of a summary of the proceedings had before the Magistrate, in typewritten form, accompanies the papers, giving a digest of the evidence adduced at the trial, if the appeal is based upon a question of fact or from an alleged erroneous determination. Citations and authorities are quoted giving reasons and grounds upon which the finding of the Magistrate was based, or quoting the law authorizing the imposition of a sentence or other disposition of the case. A marked improvement was shown from the very start.

Seventy-two per cent. of the Magistrates' decisions were affirmed by the Appellate Court during the year 1915. Decisions and opinions by Judges of these Courts have become more frequent, many of them of great importance. This has proved of help to the Magistrates and serves as a guidance to them in rendering judgment in cases of similar character.

The Bureau watches carefully every decision of the Appellate Courts affecting these Courts and furnishes the Magistrates with a record of such decisions as often as practicable; also with copies of any opinion that may be handed down by Judges of the Appellate Courts. A record book is kept showing every appeal that was entered and its disposition. Below is a table showing a record of the appeals and their disposition during the year 1915, which speaks for itself.

STATISTICAL BUREAU.

Report of CHARLES W. STRONG, Statistician.

The system of compiling statistics now in use in this office was inaugurated in its original form on July 1, 1915 (the work of the Courts of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond was not recorded, however, until August 5, 1915).

In view of all the difficulties encountered under the original scheme, Mr. George Everson, Executive Secretary of the Inferior Criminal Courts Committee of the Charity Organization Society, interested himself in a plan to revise the scope of the statistical reports to be furnished by this Bureau.

Frequent conferences were had between Judge McAdoo, Mr. Oliver and Mr. Everson, and a plan was outlined and submitted by Mr. Everson and approved, completely revising the entire system of statistics and calling for the preparation thereof quarterly, instead of weekly, monthly or bi-monthly as theretofore.

Upon being consulted in the matter, I felt that the plan proposed was very practical and would meet the difficulties formerly encountered.

Accordingly I proceeded to and did prepare under the new scheme reports showing; 1st: The work of the separate Magistrates' Courts; 2nd: The work of the Courts of each Borough; and, 3rd: The work of each individual Magistrate, all for the first quarter of 1916.

The preparation of these reports occupied my time, single-handed for exactly two months. I think possibly a few days or a week can be saved in the preparation of future reports, because of the experience gained in preparing the first. This, however, is mere conjecture.

The method of compiling statistics in this Bureau may be briefly outlined as follows:—

Every case arraigned in the Magistrates' Courts is reported to this office daily on white cards showing a complete record of the case transcribed from the Court docket. If the case is adjourned, the subsequent disposition thereof is reported on a blue card. Cases wherein the defendants elect to be tried by the Magistrates sitting as Courts of Special Sessions are, in addition to the original arraignment card, reported on a salmon-colored card, and the subsequent disposition thereof after an adjournment on a cherry-colored card. Domestic Relations Court cases and other miscellaneous dispositions are reported on specially colored cards.

Upon receipt of these cards each day, an examination thereof is first made to determine whether all of the docket numbers for that day are accounted for. Next they are examined for the purpose of extracting all cases where indeterminate sentences may have been imposed under the new Parole Law. A separate record is maintained of all of these indeterminate sentences. The cards returned by the Women's Night Court are then examined and in all cases where a defendant convicted of Prostitution is foreign born, a copy of the card is prepared and forwarded to the State Department of Labor by request. Separate records of all cases of Prostitution are then prepared for preservation in this office.

These cards are then turned over to the punch-machine operators, who have before them a chart upon which is shown under various code numbers, some 250 in all, the various offenses, dispositions and miscellaneous data required for the preparation of the quarterly reports. These machines, provided by the Powers Accounting Machine Company, produce a perforated card with from 29 to 45 perforations thereon.

There is also installed in this Bureau a verifying machine provided by the Powers people, the purpose of which is to verify the work of the punch-machine operator. The method of operation is the same as the punch machines except that an attachment to the machine displays a red light visible through the punch card wherever a mistake appears, thereby enabling the detection and correction thereof. In view of the fact that in the past few months we have not had sufficient help to operate this machine, and of the further fact that in order to verify all of the cards received from the Courts each day, it would be necessary to maintain two verifying machines to accompany the two punch machines, we have been compelled to temporarily discontinue or partially discontinue the use of the verifying machine.

After the cards have been punched and verified they are allowed to accumulate for a period of three months at a time, except that in the interim they are assorted monthly according to the various offenses and maintained in that condition so as to provide means of compiling special statistics whenever called for.

Commencing on the first day of each quarter, the final process of compiling the quarterly reports is started. The method pursued is as follows:

The most important equipment of the Bureau, in a mechanical sense, is the Assorting Machine, also provided by the Powers Accounting Machine Company. The functions of this machine include the assorting and counting of the cards produced by the punch-machines.

The punch-cards are fed into this machine by the operator after setting the machine for assorting on a particular column containing perforations conforming to the code numbers for any specific item of statistics desired. The machine will then automatically assort these cards at the rate of 250 per minute, at the same time counting the number of cards deposited in each compartment. The results appearing on the counters are then transcribed to sheets comprising the various individual reports. The number of times each card passes through the assorting machines averages fifteen. Upwards of 70,000 cards are required to be sorted on an average of fifteen times, in varying quantities, in the preparation of each quarterly report. The report when completed comprises upwards of 110 sheets, all of which must balance.

After the punch-card operators have secured the desired information from the original record cards, the same are turned over to our filing clerk, who is maintaining and has maintained since April 1, 1916, a very complete card index file, subdivided not only alphabetically but with many subdivisions of each alphabetical arrangement. I have found by experience that this system of filing with a subdivided alphabetical arrangement is the only practical method of card indexing and am anxious to see it kept up in this Bureau in its present form. I am informed by the filing clerk, however, that he finds it impossible to keep up to date with the work, single-handed. I am endeavoring to furnish him with assistance from time to time, by temporarily detailing attaches of the Bureau to assist in the work. If this particular branch of the work is worth keeping up, it is worth keeping up right. The addition of a clerk to this Bureau to assist in the filing would greatly enhance the efficiency of the filing system.

I wish at this point to commend the efficient cooperation of the staff connected with this Bureau. Without their hearty aid and assistance such results as have been obtained in building up this Bureau would have been impossible.

Dated, June 21, 1916.

BUREAU OF EQUIPMENT, ACCOUNTS AND RECORDS.

Report of SAMUEL LIPSKI, Clerk.

I have the honor to report upon the progress of the Bureau of Equipment, Accounts and Records, which was established by direction of the Chief Clerk on February 1, 1916.

The Bureau consists of 5 clerks, 1 Court attendant, and 3 messengers.

The purpose of the Bureau is to co-ordinate work which heretofore has been scattered and under several authorities.

We have centralized the storerooms of the former first and second divisions without additional cost; established a messenger system which now supplies automobile service to all of the Courts; put in operation a telephone system more efficient and less costly than that for which the present one is now substituted.

Our general work consists of the filing of all mail, the preparation of all contract specifications, the upkeep of the law library and the general bookkeeping, pay-roll, auditing and supply purchasing work of the Department.

The work has been divided among the various subordinates so that each now has a separate and distinct responsibility.

The Bureau is a clearing house for the supplies of all of the Courts and thereby facilitates the administration of the department's problems.

Permit me to commend the zeal and the intelligence of the officers of this Bureau. They have exhibited a spirit of cooperation which permitted the performance of labors burdensome and filled with detail, with dispatch and efficiency.

Dated, July 26, 1916.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT, BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT.

The Report of the Clerk of the Domestic Relations Court shows concisely the number of cases disposed of during the year 1915. We were enabled to handle this large number through the aid of an efficient and most willing clerical force, through the able assistance of Miss McQuade, the Probation Officer assigned to this Court, and of the other probation officers and with the valuable information derived from the investigations made by the Department of Public Charities.

We also wish to express our appreciation of the efficient manner in which Mr. Carr, Assistant Corporation Counsel, and Mr. Norris, representing the Charities Department, have aided us in our difficult task.

The present quarters are entirely inadequate for the proper disposal of the business of the Court. The courtroom is too small and many of the complainants are obliged to remain either in the hallway of the courthouse, where there are no facilities for seating them, or invade the Clerk's rooms, which are none too large. Even the Judges' Chambers are utilized by the woman probation officer, as it is the only place where couples can be brought together with a view of reconciling their differences. The nearness to Third Avenue renders it impossible to hear witnesses when the elevated trains are passing in the spring and summer when it becomes necessary to have the windows open to secure fresh air for a badly ventilated courtroom.

The importance of having the Court of Domestic Relations in close proximity to the Children's Court makes us hope that a site may be found and a suitable courthouse erected in the near future, where provision will be made for adequate accommodations for the clerical staff and for mothers and children whose hard fate brings them into our court for support and maintenance.

We feel that it would be for the best interest, not only of the Magistrates presiding at the Domestic Relations Court, but for the betterment of the service as a whole and for the great comfort of the litigants that the business should be conducted in a building where there is no other Magistrates' Court. The general class of persons who frequent the criminal Courts is not of the kind with whom poor mothers and children should be thrown in contact.

Quite apart from the ethical side of the work, which includes bettering conditions by effecting frequent reconciliations, there is another side which appeals to the taxpayer. The records of the Department of Public Charities show that since the establishment of this court over $800,000 has been received by its alimony bureau and paid over to dependent children and wives solely through the efforts of this Court, and that last year nearly $270,000 was so paid. Each year the amount saved the taxpayers increases, and that alone it seems to us shows the value of the Court.

ROBERT C. CORNELL.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT, BOROUGH OF BROOKLYN.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT.

If to secure equitable conditions of life is one of the most essential functions of government; if to obtain those necessities which will permit deserted wives and children to maintain a state of physical efficiency which will enable them to fight the battle of life and prevent them from becoming dependents upon public or private charity for sustenance; if it is better for society to preserve the productive forces wherever possible than to lose them; if it is better to cure the disease of non-support of wives and children, which if uncured would be most likely to sink the offender to the level of the pauper class; if, in at least a measure, to prevent that condition which Carlyle in his "Past and Present" describes as the essence of poverty, namely, "to live miserable we know not why; to be heart-worn, weary, yet isolated, unrelated, girt in with cold universal Laissez-faire"; if, as William H. Matthews in his article in The Survey of June 6, 1914, states, "the policy of all social legislation should be to remove from their (the mothers and children) lives today that constant, crushing anxiety that not only deadens hope and inspiration in the mother's life, but also gradually lays its withering, paralyzing hand on the lives of the children, creating a downward pressure on life instead of an upward energy," we think we can truthfully say the Domestic Relations Courts are doing their share towards making the lives of the non-supported and neglected wives and children who are their supplicants stronger in body and mind, and giving them greater inspiration, potency and proficiency in their journey through life, and thus conserve the interests of the unit of the State—the family.

Commencing with the receipt of three hundred dollars per month in September, 1910, the average monthly receipts in this the Domestic Relations Court of the Borough of Brooklyn is now upwards of ten thousand dollars per month. To be exact, during the year 1915 the sum of $122,650.81 was received in the Domestic Relations Court of the Borough of Brooklyn, and since its organization, now nigh onto six years, over one-half a million dollars ($508,890.32) was received through its portals and distributed for the benefit of its petitioners.

DIAGNOSIS OF THE CAUSES OF THE DISEASE OF NON-SUPPORT.

Our statistics show that the causes that lead to the door of our court are as follows: Intemperance, 39.6 per cent.; incompatibility, 25 per cent.; immorality, 11.5 per cent.; use of drugs, 1 per cent.; jealousy, 2.7 per cent.; cruelty, 1.9 per cent.; unemployment, 7.8 per cent.; religious differences, .08 per cent.; degeneracy, .03 per cent.; laziness, 3.6 per cent.; illness, .08 per cent.; forced marriages, 2.4 per cent.; gambling, 7 per cent. See report of the late Archibald J. McKinny, Deputy Chief Probation Officer annexed hereto.

TREATMENT OF THE DISEASE.

Having determined the cause of the illness, we endeavor to cure the same, and to that end we bring to our aid the most available agencies at our command, namely:

Religious Influence.—We find that if our cases will respond to religious aid, the seed is planted for a most bountiful harvest. We ascertain the religious proclivities of our patients and place ourselves in communication with their spiritual physicians, and most cordially and earnestly do they respond; and in cases that have been successfully treated, we are in a great measure indebted to the efforts of the clergy of our Borough.

The Board of Inebriety.—The Board of Inebriety of our city has rendered us most efficacious aid in the treatment of that class of delinquents addicted to the excessive use of alcoholic intoxicants, and subjects we have sent to the Board have invariably been returned to us restored to their normal condition, thereby enabling them to aid in the support of their families.

Charitable Agencies.—To the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, the Saint Vincent de Paul Society, the United Jewish Aid Society, the Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor, the Salvation Army, the Hearst newspapers and the Evening Mail newspaper we are greatly indebted for the immediate aid given our supplicants in feeding the hungry, clothing the naked and housing the ejected during the period when the purse was scant and employment in abeyance. Many a wife and child of the delinquent husband and father who came under our jurisdiction has been succored by their generosity, and to each of them we owe a debt of thanks for the help thus given in the administration of our duties.

Labor Bureau.—To the many employers of labor who have responded to our request to aid us in the reclamation of families who come within our sphere by giving employment to the heads of families who were summoned to our court for non-support, we are especially grateful, and by their generous response to our requests many a family has been reunited, their lives made happy and society benefited.

FAMILIES REUNITED.

Believing, as we do, that the life of the nation is in the strength of the family unit, we address ourselves to our utmost capacity to reunite the separated husband and wife, wherein we believe it wise to do so. To that end, we attend court each Monday evening during the year and invite conference, with the hope in mind that the difference may be settled and reconciliation effected. During the year 1915, 204 of the 2,600 cases, or 8 per cent. of the causes commenced, have been thus settled and the families reunited.

RESULTS.

The convalescents—the patients under orders of the court who paid $122,650 for the support of their families during the year 1915.

The full recoveries—the 204 families reunited, living together and who have resumed normal conditions of family life.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR SCHOOL ATTENDANCE OF THEIR CHILDREN.

Chapter 464 of the Laws of 1914 amended section 494 of the Penal Law by conferring jurisdiction upon the Domestic Relations Courts in all prosecutions for violations of Chapter 699 of the Laws of 1910, entitled "An act to amend the Penal Law relative to the punishment of parents, guardians or other persons contributing to the delinquency and offenses of children."

Under this provision of law there were 206 prosecutions of parents for omitting to send their children to school. We endeavor to impress upon the parents that it is their duty to educate their children, advising them that illiteracy is more likely to lead to crime than education, and the more safeguards that can be thrown around the child the more likely a normal development will ensue, and therefore better citizenship will follow.

Fines to the amount of $241 were imposed on parents who neglected to keep their children at school. In flagrant cases, imprisonment varying from two to thirty days was imposed. That the efforts of the Magistrates sitting in this court to enforce school attendance is meeting the approbation of the Department of Education and the New York Child Labor Committee, the following extracts from communications received from Mr. John W. Davis, Director of the Bureau of Attendance of the Board of Education of the City of New York, and Mr. George A. Hall, Secretary of the New York Child Labor Committee, show.

Mr. Davis writes under date of February 8, 1916:

"In reviewing the work of this Bureau for the past year, I feel that it is incumbent upon me to convey to you my deep appreciation of the splendid co-operation received from . . . the Magistrates in the Domestic Relations Court, as I believe that much of the success we have had in enforcing school attendance during the year is in a great measure due to your disposition of the cases. . . . Moreover, parents and the public in general are impressed with the fact that children will not be permitted to remain away in defiance of the law without fear of punishment. The fines imposed and the reprimands given will go a long way towards making better citizens of both parents and children."

Mr. Hall writes:

"I desire to tell you how much pleased the members of my Committee are to learn of the splendid support you are giving to the officials responsible for enforcing the school attendance law."

The full text of the respective communications are hereto annexed.

TABLE ANALYSIS.

Table A shows that the number of warrants issued during the year 1915 on complaints filed during said year was 1770; the number of warrants executed, 1,373. Percentage of warrants executed, 77 per cent.

The number of summonses issued was 1,558; the number of appearances on summonses, 998; percentage of appearances on summonses, 64 per cent. The summonses issued out of the Domestic Relations Court are practically all served by mail.

DEAR SIR:

In reviewing the work of this bureau for the past year, I feel that it is incumbent upon me to convey to you my deep appreciation of the splendid cooperation received from yourself and the other magistrates in the Domestic Relations Court, as I believe that much of the success we have had in enforcing school attendance during the year is in a great measure due to your disposition of these cases. The concentration of our court work and the prosecution of parents under section 494 of the penal law have been the means of saving a great deal of time for the attendance officers; furthermore, the division supervisor, Mr. Charles T. Gartland, who has charge of the court cases, is enabled to direct the work more intelligently and systematically. Moreover, parents and the public in general are impressed with the fact that children will not be permitted to remain away from school in defiance of the law, without fear of punishment. The fines imposed and the reprimands given will go a long way towards making better citizens of both parents and children.

Thanking you for your assistance, I am

Very truly yours,

JOHN W. DAVIS,
Director.

Hon. EDWARD J. DOOLEY,
City Magistrate,
Domestic Relations Court,

DEAR JUDGE DOOLEY:

Having noticed an account in the newspapers of your action in committing to jail the father of Helen Domkeuski, I desire to tell you how much pleased the members of my Committee are to learn of this splendid support you are giving to the officials responsible for enforcing the school attendance law. It is most gratifying to find that a number of our City Magistrates look at this question in an enlightened manner and recognize the importance of regular schooling, especially for children of foreign born parents. If all our Magistrates were to handle similar cases in the same constructive manner I feel sure that truancy would soon be stamped out in this city.

With best wishes for the continued success of your efforts in this direction, I beg to remain, on behalf of the Committee,

Respectfully yours,

GEORGE A. HALL,
Secretary.

Note:—The 12th District Court, Manhattan, was opened for business on November 1, 1915. This accounts for the small percentage of cases disposed of in this Court as compared to the population of the Court District. The 8th District Court, Brooklyn, and the 3d District Court, Queens, are largely Summer Courts, the greater part of the business of said Courts being transacted during that season.

The above figures do not include cases disposed of in the Men's and Women's Night Courts nor in the Domestic Relations Courts.

Of the total population of all Boroughs, 236,591 or 4.5 per cent., were arraigned in the Magistrates' Courts during the year 1915.

COURT RULES

RULE I.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

1. Hearing complaints not taken by the clerk.
2. Applications for adjournments.
3. Precinct returns.
4. Warrants and Summonses.
5. Examinations and Trials.
6. Hearing complaints not taken by the clerk.

This order of business, except as to 1 and 6, may be varied by the presiding Magistrate in the interest of the public service. Applications for bail and the acceptance and execution of undertakings may be made at any convenient time.

RULE II.

The clerks shall keep, or cause to be kept, in each court the following books:

1. The Magistrate's Court Record and Special Sessions Docket.
2. Examination Book.
3. Bond Book.
4. Book of Fines.
5. Warrant Book.
6. Summons Book.
7. Receipt Book.

RULE III.

DETENTION PEN.

No person other than an official attached to the Court shall be allowed to approach or enter the detention pen when occupied by any prisoners, except when accompanied by the presiding Magistrate.

RULE IV.

COMPLAINT ROOM.

No person, other than the court officials, arresting officer or officers, complainants and their witnesses, or counsel for the complainant, shall be allowed in the complaint room while business is being transacted therein, except counsel for the defendant may be admitted whenever the defendant is present therein.

No person shall speak to another in the court room, halls or rooms adjacent thereto, inquiring as to his or her business, recommending lawyers, offering professional cards or proffering any kind of advice or instruction. But reasonable opportunity shall be afforded the defendant to confer with counsel, relatives, friends, and witnesses.

RULE V.

In all cases upon giving bond and the signing of a discharge by a City Magistrate, after conviction and final commitment, a record thereof shall be made in the Magistrate's Court Record and said discharge shall be forwarded to the office of the Chief City Magistrate who shall cause a record thereof to be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose, after which the said discharge shall be forwarded to the Department of Correction if the same be in regular order; if not, it shall be returned to the City Magistrate issuing the same for correction as may be necessary. Except that in the Boroughs of Queens and Richmond the discharge shall be forwarded by the Chief City Magistrate to the Sheriff of the County, or such other official who may have the defendant in custody.

RULE VI.

The reason for granting each adjournment, except the first adjournment, shall be endorsed upon the papers.

RULE VII.

PLEAS OF GUILTY.

If on arraignment, or at any subsequent time, the defendant pleads guilty, the summary inquiry may then proceed and if no sufficient cause be shown, or appear to the court, why judgment should not be pronounced, it shall thereupon be either rendered or suspended, or defendant placed on probation.

RULE VIII.

TRIALS.

Whenever upon arraignment, or at a subsequent time, the defendant pleads not guilty and ready for trial, and there is no reasonable ground for an adjournment on behalf of the complainant, the trial shall proceed and when closed judgment of acquittal or conviction shall be pronounced, unless the Magistrate shall take the case under advisement. If the defendant is found guilty, subsequent proceedings shall be the same as in pleas of guilty under the preceding rule.

RULE IX.

INVESTIGATIONS.

In case final judgment is deferred pending an investigation, all further proceedings may be had before a succeeding Magistrate in the same court if through illness, absence, or other inability the convicting Magistrate is prevented from holding the court, or if requested so to do in an endorsement on the papers by the convicting Magistrate.

(Note: Section No. 73, No. 92-a, No. 98-a, and No. 100 of our Court Act, sub. 4 of Section No. 483, Code of Criminal Procedure, this being the initial step in probation, but especially see People v. Brown, 163 App. Div. 234, and People v. Bork, 96 N. Y. 188, 198.)

RULE X.

INDORSEMENTS.

The complaint with the action of the court thereon indorsed constitutes, in the main, the judgment roll. Such indorsements should be made so as to give complete information of the various proceedings from pleading to final judgment. Initial letter abbreviations such as p.g. or p.n.g., should be avoided and the termination of the case should be strictly within the criminal procedure of the State.

(Note: "In stating the plea there is no occasion for the use of any abbreviations at all." People v. Kaminsky, 208 N. Y., 389.)

RULE XI.

NEW TRIALS.

Whenever a remittitur on appeal granting a new trial reaches the Court in which the action arose, and the defendant or his counsel is not present to fix the day of such trial, a notice of not less than two days shall be served on the surety on the appeal bond to produce the defendant in court at a date and hour mentioned in the notice. This notice may be served personally or by mail. If the defendant does not appear on the return day, steps may be taken to forfeit the bond and a bench warrant may be issued for the defendant. When the defendant does appear the case in all respects shall be treated by the Court as then constituted as if a trial had never been had therein.

If at any time the trial be postponed to some other date the ordinary proceedings as on original arraignment should be followed.

RULE XII.

AMENDMENTS.

The foregoing rules can be amended only at a meeting of the Board of Magistrates and require the consent of a majority of the Board members.

BOARD RULES.

RULE I.

OFFICERS.

The officers of this Board shall consist of the Chief City Magistrate and the Chief Clerk, the latter to act as Secretary to the Board.

RULE II.

DUTIES.

The Chief City Magistrate shall preside at all meetings of the Board, which he shall conduct in accordance with parliamentary rules. He shall present to the Board all communications and complaints that relate to matters coming within the province of its duties. He shall appoint all standing and special committees, unless otherwise directed by the Board, and issue all calls for Board or committee meetings.

The Secretary shall keep the minutes of all meetings and perform the usual duties of his office.

RULE III.

ACTING OFFICERS.

In the event of the absence of the Chief City Magistrate from a meeting of the Board, the Secretary shall call the meeting to order, and ask for the election of a chairman pro tem.

In the absence of the Secretary, the Board may appoint a Secretary pro tem.

RULE IV.

MEETINGS.

The quarterly meetings of the Board, provided by law, shall be held on the last day of September, December, March, and June; provided, however, that if such date falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, the meetings shall be held on the preceding day.

The meeting place of the Board shall be at No. 300 Mulberry Street Borough of Manhattan.

RULE V.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

The order of business at the meetings of the Board shall be as follows:

1. Reading of the minutes.
2. Reading of communications.
3. Reports of committees.
4. Unfinished business.
5. Motions and resolutions.
6. Miscellaneous business.

RULE VI.

APPOINTMENTS AND REMOVALS.

All appointments of official employees within the province of the Board shall be made by a majority of the entire Board upon a roll call, whereat the vote of each Magistrate shall be recorded in the minutes.

Removals within the province of the Board shall be made upon a like vote, recorded in like manner.

The Chief City Magistrate is empowered to make appointments to positions in the competitive service when vacancies occur in the interim between meetings of the Board; all such appointments to be ratified at the next meeting of the Board.

No employee shall be removed without a five days' notice in writing, specifying the complaint and the cause of the proposed removal, and an opportunity for an explanation as provided in Section 103, Chapter 659 of the Laws of 1910.

RULE VII.

COMMITTEES.

The following are the standing Committees of this Board:

- Employees—appointment and removal.
- Rules, practice and procedure.
- Buildings and Budget.
- Legislation.
- Promotions.
- Welfare.

And the same shall be composed of not less than ten members, to be appointed by the Chief City Magistrate, except that the Promotion Board shall consist of not more than six members.

RULE VIII.

The office of the Chief City Magistrate and the Board of City Magistrates shall be open every day from 9 A. M. to 4:30 P. M., excepting Sundays and legal holidays. On Saturdays the office may be closed at noon.

RULE IX.

Amendments to the Board rules require the consent of the majority of all members of the Board.
